Outskirts Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 134 pages. Dimensions: 8.3in. x 5.5in. x 0.5in. Building a Foundation: A Primer for Cross-Cultural Teachers was written for Christians who feel called to teach and evangelize in other parts of the world. This concise, personable book should be a first read for those needing and wanting to build a basic understanding of culture, teaching, and missions. Basic concepts that people need as they prepare for and begin cross-cultural teaching ministries are discussed. The first half of the book starts by focusing on culture and then looks at worldview, ethnocentricity, culture shock, and culture competency. These chapters give readers a basic understanding of how culture and worldview influence our interactions with others. The second half of the book begins with stories that are built around different ministry aspects of teaching. It then discusses how the classroom is a microcosm of culture and how the curriculum needs to fit the needs of the learner and meet the expectations of that culture. The book concludes with encouraging Biblical principles that connect teaching with evangelism and discipleship. The end of each of the eight chapters will engage readers in a variety of activities. They may be asked to read and discuss pertinent quotes, write personal reflections on the chapters topic, make applications of principles to their host culture, or begin considering the educational needs of their new students. As a primer for cross-cultural teachers, this book is less an academic treatise and more a personal, informative work. It will engage readers from a variety of ages and backgrounds from high school students considering teaching English on a short-term missions trip, to college students considering a month or a semester as an international teaching intern, to retirees considering how they may yet serve. For five years, Lynn DeVries...
